

Kentucky DECA July Newsletter

Hey Kentucky DECA! Our state advisor and state officers have been busy the month of July planning state conference, meeting at our summer board meeting in Louisville, and planning events for the upcoming school year.

Some may be out there wondering how to become a DECA member, one of the best ways to do that is to look for your marketing or business teacher and get connected with them. Another way to learn about being a member of DECA is to go to our website www.ky-deca.org and check out the DECA Difference tab.

We encourage advisors, and members to check out our Kentucky DECA website. By going to www.ky-deca.org you can see our newly renovated website. You can now correspond with your state Kentucky DECA state advisor Mrs. Lisa Oakes, and your state officers all by just clicking their names.

Being a DECA member empowers you to become a leader in your community. By being a DECA member you're enhancing your skills for any and every workforce. DECA is readying the future of America by broadening our members' knowledge of promotion, advertising, selling, finance, and distribution which are universal in every work setting.
